Writing

"A freedom or an imitation of it?"
In 2023 it is almost impossible to find a person without any device that provides access to the internet or social media. There are lots of everyday arguments for and against the usage of technology. But now we need to answer the main question: doesn't give us more or less freedom? Firstly, there are lots of positive things about using technology in life, such as fast access to any information by searching it online, or reverending connection with your friends or family by text messages or phone calls. However, it gives us less freedom because people will always know where you are and what are you doing.

Secondly, to provide the other opinion I may say that social media mostly harm human's self-esteem and self image, by giving us an unrealistic view of ourselves. Therefore, the internet is a perfect source of information about any human on earth that left their digital footprint online. In my opinion, technology gave humanity more of positive changes, because now people can communicate easily and learn something new everyday with use of the internet. But now we have to pay for it with our freedom and an opportunity of being anonymous in the social networking sites.
